advertisement attribute further comprises analyzing the purchase of the product to determine a probability of the subscriber to purchase a complimentary product (Figs.4b-6b, C5 L43-54, C7 L1-8, Survey results/demographic matching analysis – application table part of matching system).

23. As per Claim 41, Boe discloses wherein the step of receiving said subscriber attribute comprises receiving a purchase of a competitive product (Figs.4b-6b, spending history survey results – ex. type of vehicle) by said subscriber, and wherein the step of analyzing the matched data to determine said probability of the subscriber to purchase said product associated with the advertisement attribute further comprises analyzing the purchase of the competitive product to determine said probability of the subscriber to purchase said product (Figs.4b-6b, C5 L43-54, C7 L1-8, Survey results/demographic matching analysis).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

28. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

- (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

29. Claims 3 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103 as being unpatentable over Boe.

30. As per Claims 3 and 5, Boe fails to expressly show wherein said data from the plurality of programming and advertising sources comprises television programming data or duration information.

31. However these differences are only found in the nonfunctional descriptive material and are not functionally involved in the steps recited. The method (computer-readable medium, system) for utilizing information relating to a subscriber, to identify said subscriber as a desirable subscriber would be performed regardless of the type of content-access information used. Thus, this descriptive material will not distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art in terms of patentability, see In re Gulack, 703 F.2d 1381, 1385, 217 USPQ 401, 404 (Fed. Cir. 1983); In re Lowry, 32 F.3d 1579, 32 USPQ2d 1031 (Fed. Cir. 1994).

32. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to perform the method (computer-readable medium, system) using television programming data or duration information as the content-access information, because such data does not functionally relate to the steps in the method claimed and because the subjective interpretation of the content-access information does not patentably distinguish the claimed invention.
